I can well appreciate the difficulties of doing business in the international sphere these days. By charter, however, the CIA can share its knowledge only with other appropriate government agencies, not the private sector.

The State Department, on the other hand, is in a position to assist the private sector and is more than willing to do so. I would therefore suggest that you get in touch with Mr. Michael Cotter, who handles Turkish affairs over at State. He can be reached on 632-1562.

Sincerely,

John N. McMahon
